The new MACH100 family is ideal when maximum performance and the highest possible reliability are needed in near-office areas. The new Workgroup Switches are available in two versions: as a modular Workgroup Switch or with a fixed number of ports. Both in fanless design and the best Hirschmann™ quality for an up to four times longer service life.

Users will also benefit from extensive redundancy features which are especially called for at the interface between industry and office environments, for example in the factory control room or in process automation.
